Fiber post and core: A clinical consideration

Mona al Saad

King Abdulaziz Medical City, KSA

The main goal of all dentists in the daily clinical work is to maintain proper mastication, occlusion, and appearance and speech to their patient. Rehabilitation of endodontically treated teeth is one of the clinical challenges we face to reach our goal, where there is no one formula to use but varieties of situations confronting the dentist. Some factors will be listed here which need to be considered when using fiber post to restore the endodontically treated teeth.
