Definition: In medical term the word esthetic can range from changing life style to changing the future of a patient. And that would be truer when we talk about esthetic in the area of head and neck and maxillofacial area. In this review some of the cases that the word esthetic procedure can be used while truly it is necessary procedures and necessity of life to continue appropriately and without this procedure normal physiological functions will be disturbed even a lot will still call it esthetic procedure.

In the other hand some of the procedures will absolutely cause neither functional disturbance nor emotional disturbance. While some of the other procedures may fall in between the necessary and unnecessary procedure depending on the physiology and psychology of the patient and gender sometimes.

Conclusion

1. Final judgment in doing a surgical procedure to patient is totally dependent on the surgeon judgment and ethical values that have to be watched
2. No elective procedure can be done if it will expose the patient to any harm
