EDITORIAL NOTE

Over many past decades I have seen many changes have been admitted in the ageing process and its related fields across the world with more social and physiological impact on the society and researcher. By utilizing the opportunity here I am pleased to introduce the Journal of Gerontology & Geriatric Research a rapid peer reviewed Journal which aims to focus and publish the current findings from systematic explorations in the areas of Gerontology, Geriatric Research, Aging Science, Palliative Care, Elder care, Geriatric depression, Critical Gerontology, Geriatric Internal Medicine, Alzheimers Disease & Parkinsonism, and Geriatric Psychiatry and Neurology. The journal has special emphasis on the emerging challenges in diagnosis; prevention and treatment of old age conditions and the associated Geriatric Research both on social and scientific level.

The journal use to publish 6 issues per year with a good quality research work submitted by the researchers across the world. The constant support and response from the researchers encouraged us in announcing the call for paper for the Journal. The journal welcomes different types of science communications including original research article, systematic reviews, Editorials, letters to the Editors and expert opinions & commentaries, short note communications, case reports, from multiple regions for publication.

It has been observed that the Covid-pandemic showing a high risk to the older adult, by considering it the journal has recently coined the special issue on the study of Severity of COVID Infection and Elder Care. The special issue encourages the researchers to publish their valuable research work of diagnosis, treatment, and preventive measure which may helps to overcome the risk of pandemic towards older adults.

I am happy to announce that the journal came up with the excellent idea of video article publishing from July 2020. One can submit their research work in the form of video about the size 25-30 MB. So the prospective academicians and scientists are encouraged to utilize this opportunity and publish their work with effective manner at relatively faster pace and at low expenditure.

The journal has a standard editorial tracking system for manuscript submission, review, editorial processing and tracking which can be securely accessed by the authors, reviewers and editors for monitoring and tracking the article processing. Manuscripts can be uploaded at <https://www.longdom.org/submissions/gerontology-geriatric-research.html> or forwarded to the editorial office at gerontology@medicineinsights.com
